Dear Hiring Team,

I'm writing to express my interest in a graphic design position where I can contribute both creatively and meaningfully. I recently earned my BFA in Graphic Design and Illustration, along with a certificate in Digital Marketing, and I'm eager to begin the next chapter of my career with a team that values thoughtful visual communication and community-centered work.

Throughout my college experience, I built a strong foundation in branding, illustration, and web design—skills I've refined through both academic and real-world projects. I've had the opportunity to work with local businesses like Levity Brewing Company, contribute to university-based design work, and collaborate across disciplines to bring ideas to life.

Alongside my design education, I also worked in IT support, assisting students, faculty, and staff with troubleshooting and tech solutions. That role sharpened my communication and problem-solving skills, and it gave me a deeper appreciation for the people I serve. Whether it's resolving a technical issue or designing a campaign, I've learned that impact happens in the small moments of connection.

As I begin my professional journey, I'm looking for opportunities where I can not only apply my technical skills but also grow with a mission-driven team. I'm excited about the possibility of helping organizations tell their stories in ways that are clear, creative, and full of heart.

Thank you for considering my application. I'd love the opportunity to talk further about how my background, skills, and passion for meaningful design can support your team's goals.

Sincerely,

*Stephen
